Dear Parents/Carers,

We have a student in Millom School who has a severe nut allergy; also known as anaphylaxis.

Please read the information sheet about Anaphylaxis.

Education of staff, catering personnel, parents and learners on how to manage food allergies is thought to be the most effective approach. All staff in Millom School will have been educated to recognise and respond to an anaphylactic reaction and summon assistance, following anaphylaxis best practice guidance. When notified of a learner with an airborne nut allergy risk and the potential for an immediately life threatening anaphylactic reaction, it is imperative the school shows that in all circumstances, measures are in place to minimise this risk, aiming to ensure all nuts and nut products are not brought onto the school site.

Millom School will not use nut oils in any lessons, nuts and nut products are not used within any catering options and nuts have been prohibited within the Refectories and all eating spaces. Lunch boxes, or any foods brought on to the school site, must not contain nuts or nut products. We appreciate your cooperation in this matter.

This letter is to alert you that a student in Millom School has a severe allergy to nuts. To help keep the classroom and whole school site safe, it would be greatly appreciated if you could be mindful when sending foods into school with your child. If you have any questions please contact Millom School.

I thank you for your cooperation in helping to make our school a safe environment for all students.

Yours faithfully,

Sarah Morton (Mrs)
Director of SEN/SENCO
